

The multidimensional nature of the DLF allows for a plurality of applications. Components within the Framework can be used both in isolation and in relation to each other.

Leadership Capabilities can inform

- professional learning plans
- staff effectiveness conversations
- individual's discernment when considering applying for a leadership position
- leadership development processes at individual and team levels
- principal and senior leadership appointment documentation
- leadership team formation and reflection
- coaching/mentoring
- personal reflection

Leadership across the Five Aspects of Catholic Schooling can inform

- role description development or critique
- formative and summative appraisal processes
- professional learning plans
- leadership team formation and reflection
- coaching/mentoring
- personal reflection

The inter-relatedness of the components is highlighted in an example where a revised role description informed by the Leadership across the Five aspects of Catholic Schooling component may be used as a reference point when undertaking a self-audit using the Leadership Capabilities Reflection Tool.

Another example focuses on a professional learning plan in which the Wellbeing aspect of Catholic Schooling offers the context for the development of relational and personal capabilities.

The following case studies may offer further clarity on the DLF's implementation with a school.

Examples of how the Framework could be used

Case One:

Bill Doe, Deputy Principal

Forum: Leadership Team annual reflection process- Self-auditing reflection

Scenario: Bill is a vibrant and passionate leader of learning. He articulates a clear vision and ensures school-wide collaborative planning structures and practices are focusing on positive student outcomes. Utilizing the DLF, Bill has identified faith leadership as an area of growth, where consistency of witness needs to find expression across a range of elements within his role. A priority will be to access faith formation opportunities as part of his professional learning plan.
